Gallery North presents Borderlands
Preview: Thursday 23 April 6pm
Exhibition runs until Thursday 8 May

'Borderlands' brings together artists whose practice engages with issues of boundaries and border zones. At a time when, internationally, the subject of borders and border crossings is of pressing concern, this exhibition takes a unique perspective. Gallery North works with concepts of hard and soft borders; hard territorial zones - geo-political and others - which circumscribe mobility and enforce separation, and more symbolic regions such as the Anglo-Scottish border where movement is relatively unhindered but where dynamic, hybrid identities emerge nevertheless.

Set apart by a boundary wall in the central section of the gallery, in a space only visible through thin window strips to the rear of the building, Allan Hughes engages with problems of visualisation of a once militarised site, heavily overlaid with meaning - an unstable and deeply fractured ground.
